By Noelle Chun

San Francisco's stunning view of the Bay and its bridges is part of what makes this city so special. The Embarcadero, a wide boardwalk that runs along the Eastern shore of the City, is one of San Francisco's best places to take in these views. Day in and day out, the pleasant stretch attracts crowds of both tourists and diehard locals alike, who come for the weekly farmers markets, the wide open sidewalks for strolling, the fresh air — and yes, the eats and the drinks.

The Embarcadero is home to some of the city's very best, whether it's for a romantic date, a nice brunch, a casual bite, or just a fun night out. The epicure will find a wide and satisfying selection, from world class Vietnamese food to French Japanese, from classic Californian dining to healthy eats — and with beautiful vistas day and night, to boot.
